AN AMUSING SPECIMEN OF HUMANI- are six or seven families, and few of these TY.

Whoever travels through any of the New England States, and twigs as he journeys the ectentricities of some of the natives, cannot ful to be amused; and if he chooses, derive many new ideas in respect to etymology and diversity of character.

Some years since an acquaintance of ours ermont.

While traveling through the town of New Salem his road led into a piece of woods, some five miles in length, and long before he got out of which, he began to entertain doubts whether he should ever be blest with the sight of a human habitation; but as all things must have an end, so at fast had the words, and the nut brown house of a farmer general his vis-

Near the road was a tall, over-grown, lanthern-pawed boy, probably seventeen years of age, digging potatoes. He were cur ous figare to behold. What was lacking to the length of his tow breeches was amply made up for in width his suspenders appeared to be composed of birch back, grape vine and sheep skin, and as for his hat, which had evidently seen better days, but now, alas! it was only the shadow of its glory. Whether the tempest of time had beaten the top in, or the lad's expanding genius had burst it out, was difficult to tell; at any rate it was missing-and thro' the aperture red hairs in abundance stood six ways for Sunday. In short he was one of the roughest specimens of domestic manufacture that ever mortal beheld. Our traveling friend feeling an itching to scrape acquemtance with the critter, drew up the reins of his horse,

'Hallo my good friend, can you inform me how far it is to the next house "

Jonathan started up, leaned on his hoe handle, rested one foot on the gambril of his sinister leg, and replied:

"Hullo yourself! how'd dew? wall, I juss can. Taint near so fur now as it used to be afore they cut the woods away, then 'twas gencraffy reckoned four mile, but now the sun shrivels up the road, an don't make more'n tew. The fust house you come to is a barn, and the next is a hay-stack; but old Hoskin's is on beyont. You'll be sure to meet his gals long afore you git there, tarnal rompin' critters, they plague our folks more'n a little. His sheep git into our paster every day, and his gals in our orchard. Dad sets the dog arter the sheep, and me arter the gals, and the way he makes the wool and I the petticoats fly is a sin to sankes."

'I see you are inclined to be facetious, young man, pray tell me how it happens that one of your legs is shorter than the other?"

"I never lows anybody to meddle with my grass tanglers, mistur; but seein its you FU tell ye. I was born so at my tickerler request, so that when I hold plough, I can go with one foot in the furrer, and tother on land, and not lap over; besides, it is very convenient when I mow round a side hill.'

Very good indeed, how do your potatoes come on this year?'

"They don't come at all: I digs 'em out: and there's an everlastin snarl of 'em in each hill.

But they are small, I perceive '

'Yes, I know it, you see we planted some whoppen blue noses over in that ere patch ere and they flourished so oll firedly that thes ere stop growin jist out of spite, cause they know'd they could'nt begin to keep up.'

'You appear to be pretty smart, and I should think you could afford a better hat than the one you wear."

'The looks ain't nothin! it's all in the behavior. This ere hat was my religious, Sonday, go-to-meetin hat, and its chock full of piety now. I've got a latter one to hum, but I don't dig taters in it, no how." 'You have been in these parts some time, I should guess.'

'I guess so tew. I was born'd and got my brought'n up in that ere house, but my native place is down in Podunk.

Then you say it is about three and a half miles to the next house?"

'Yes sir, 'twas a spell ago, and I don't believe it's grow'd much shorter since."

'Much obliged, good bye.' Good bye to ye, that's a darn slick mare of your'n.

There, reader, there is a Jonathan for you of the first water. You dont't find his squal every where.

CONDITION OF THE WORKING CLAS-SES OF GREAT BRITAIN.

The reports of the House of Com. is upon the condition of the working classes of Great Britain, present a picture appalling and truly horrifying. These reports are irrefragable evidences of the physical and moral degradation of the working and humbler classes of Great Britain, and are, no doubt, the silent causes of the late, and indeed present dissatisfied and disturbed state of the people; for nothing so quickly evokes from its murky habitations the spirit of revolt, as poverty. The following is a condensed statement of the returns contained in the reports alluded to:

Nottingham has a population of 50,000 .-Within the town, which consists of 11,000 houses, there are from 7,000 to 8,000 be it hack to back. When the cholers raged, mamy rows of houses were found to be placed upon drains, which were shallow, and simply covered with the boards of the sitting-room floors. These, when shronk by heat, allowed same noxious smells to rise. The health and morals of the residents suffered greatly from the Humours! Humours!! O. K. (alleured) state of their dwellings. Liverpool population consists of 230,000. There are in the borough of Liverpool 7,862 uniquited cellars, dark, damp, confined, ill ventilibred, and dirty. These cellars contain one fifth of the working classes, being 39,000 persons, and of the whole population they contain one seventh. There are 2,270 courts, in which there are six or seven families, and few of these courts have more than one outlet. Manchester population, 200,000. It was ascertained that twelve per cent. of the working population live in cellurs. There are of that class 125,232 persons, of whom 34,676 live in cellurs. In Salford there are $5,901 of the working population of the seven of the seven of the population of the property of the seven lars. In Salford there are 49,991 of the working classes, 3,335 of whom dwell in cellars -It is stated that of 57,900 dwellings of the but out, on horse-back, from the eastern part working classes, which were examined, 18,of Massachusetts for the Green Mountains of 400 were ill-furnished, and 10,400 scarcely comfortable. In Bury the population is 20,-One. The following statement of the condition of 3,000 of the families of the working classes in this place is most revolting. In 773 houses they slept three to four in a bed; in 207, they slept four to five in a bed; and session.

Since for 73 this reverse of this very valuable medicine it was first offered to the papilic by the original inventor and projector, a few years since.

It is undoubtedly experient to any other article offered to the public, as it seldom fails in giving relief when it is taken in due wearen. in 207, they slept four to five in a bed; and in 78, they slept five to six in a bed! This awful statement must rouse the honest and religious indignation of every Englishman .-Bristol population, 120,000. Of 1,259 families, consisting of 20,000 persons, 2,800 families have but one room; 630 houses are without sewers; and 1,304 houses are without water, or are supplied with bad water. Newcastle-on-Tyne, population 64,600. The examiner of this place reports as follows: In many parts the dwellings are close, dirty and miserable, without order or comfort, whole families inhabiting a single room, and living in an atmosphere totally unendurable. The mind cannot pictore a state of greater destitution or misery. Leeds population 80,000. Of 17,-800 houses, 13,600 are under £10 per annum, and contain 61,000 of the working classes .-The streets are very bad, one half of which are hung with linen, and are impassable to horses. The north-east ward contains 15,400 working people, and has 93 streets. Of these, three have sewers, twelve have them partly, thirty-eight are without sewers, and forty are unknown. In 1839, the deaths in Leeds were one in twenty-eight and a half. Glasgow, Mr. Simonds the Commissioner, speaking of this city, says- Until I visited the wynds of Glasgow, I did not believe that so large an amount of filth, crime, misery and disease existed in any civilized country. In the lower lodging houses, ten, twelve, and sometimes twenty persons of both sexes and all ages, sleep promiscuously on the floor, in different degrees of nakedness. These places are such as no person of common humanity would stable his horse in. The lower parts of several of those houses are spirit shops, pawn-shops, or eating houses. The population of these wretched districts is probably 30,000; it certainly exceeds 20,000 persons, who are passing through the rapid career of prostitution, drunkenness, and disease. The number of persons who died last year was 10,270, or one to twenty-three and a half of the whole population; and of that number about 180 died of typhus, a disease which never leaves Glasgow.' It appears from another statement, that, in 1835, the number of persons attacked by fever was 6,180; in 1836, 10,092; and in 1837, 21,- Surely such an amount of human misery cannot but be contemplated with horror, and cannot fail of arousing the tender sympathies of the humane and benevolent, upon whom heaven showers its blessings of wealth, to some effort to rescue their fellow creatures from such an abyss of physical and moral debasement !- Mark-Lane (Eng.) Express.

The condition upon which Gost has given health to man is a constant care to keep his stomach and bowels free from all mostlid or unbrailing accommutations. The means to effect this most be those remedies which cleanse the MOFFAT'S VEGETABLE LIFE MEDI-cines.—These medicines are indebted for their name to their manufest and sensible action in parifying the springs and channels of hife, and enduing them will renewed tone and vigor. In many hundreds of certified cases which have been made public, and in almost every species of puscase to which the human frame is liable, the happy effects of Moffat's Life Pills and Physics Bitters have been gratefully and militaly acknowledged by the recognition. ly and publicly acknowledged by the persons benefited, and who were previously unacquainted with the beautifully philo-sophical principles upon which they are compounded, and up-on which they consequently act.

The LIFE MEDICINES recommend themselves in discuses of every form and description. Their first operation is to loose from the coats of the stomach and howels the various impurities and crudities constantly settling around them, and to re-move the hardenedfaces which collect in the convolutions of the smaller intestines. Other medicines only partially cleanes these, and leave such collected masses behind as to produce habitual costiveness with all its train of evils, or sudden diarhora, with its eminent dangers. This fact is well known to all regular anatomist, who examine the human bowells after death; and hence theprejudices of those well informed men a gainst quack medicins—or medicines prepared and heralded to the public by ignosut persons. The second effect of the Life medicines is to clause the kidneys and the bladder, and by this means the liverand the lungs, the healthful action of which entirely depend upon the regularity of the urinary or gams. The blood, which takes its red color from the agency of the liver and the lungs before it passes into the heart, being thus purified by them, and nourished by food coming from a clean stomach, courses freely through the reins, renews every part of the system and triumphantly mounts the banner of health in the blooming cheek. Moffat's Vegetable life medicines have been thoroughly test-
